

Yale-New Haven
Teachers Institute®

Curriculum Units by Fellows of the Yale-New Haven Teachers Institute
1978 Volume III: 20th Century American History and Literature

I Hate All . . . Prejudice and the Individual

Guide for Curriculum Unit 78.03.02

by Jay M. Brown

With all our modern technological advances we still have been unable to overcome the prejudice of human beings toward other human beings. This unit devotes a large portion of the narrative to the development of a comprehensive definition of the many forms and effects of prejudice. A major objective is to make students more aware of the fact that race, religion, and nationality do not make one person superior or inferior to another. A variety of techniques that should broaden students' understanding is suggested and then incorporated into the course outline. Three sample lesson plans are included as well as a list of student activities. Bibliographies, resource lists, and addresses for further information conclude the unit.

(Recommended for use in the Social Studies classrooms in both Middle and High Schools; no specific time frame is suggested)

Key Words

General America Prejudice Race Relations American

<https://teachersinstitute.yale.edu>

©2019 by the Yale-New Haven Teachers Institute, Yale University

For terms of use visit <https://teachersinstitute.yale.edu/terms>